ROSCOE ARBUCKLE BESTS YELLOW JOURNALISM

The trial and vindication of Roscoe Arbuckle at San Francisco, which came to an ending yesterday, again calls attention to the dastardly efforts of the Examiner and other yellow journals to besmirch the reputation of people. These papers had the film comedian tried and convicted even before a direct charge had been preferred against him and it was evident from the very start that there was an attempt being made on the part of the district attorney at San Francisco and a number of his latest henchmen to "shake down" Arbuckle and the big movie corporations that naturally were compelled to go to his defense. Even here at home we were treated to a conglomeration of words hurled together in the moonshine sheet down the street wherein Arbuckle was tried, convicted and sentenced to penal servitude before any direct charge had been preferred.

Every person charged with a crime is presumed under our laws to be innocent until proven guilty beyond all peradventure of a reasonable doubt, but in the case of Roscoe Arbuckle no such presumption was made. He was literally preyed upon with this world's goods, so the word went out to "shake him down" to all he was worth. The shakers got busy and succeeded in forcing the defendant to spend practically everything he had in an effort to clear his name of a man-made charge. The big picture corporations were forced to also expend large sums of money in having the name of their "star" cleared from this horrible charge by reason of the fact that they had hundreds of thousands of dollars tied up in pictures that could not be released so long as the court proceedings were pending.

It is evident that Arbuckle was picked upon as a victim, and how successful the yellow journals were in their efforts to make a lot of fuss about nothing is best evidenced from the announcement that has been made that Arbuckle has been ruined financially. Thank God, these morbid and sensational publications, assisted by hired henchmen in political positions, did not get much of the money; neither did the moralists who became so active in the case. Arbuckle and his friends proved "guilty to the core" and they fought the assassins of reputation with a determination that spelled success from the very start.

People should not be too hasty to judge those charged with law violations, and should never be swayed from the right course through reading sensational and debasing articles and editorials appearing in such publications as the moonshine sheet in Tonopah and the San Francisco Examiner, both of which pursue the same policies in their damnable efforts to injure others. The day of reckoning is near at hand when these destructors of reputation will be called upon for an accounting and the time is not far distant when "shake downs" by the police and high officials, assisted by yellow journals, will be curbed in their damnable efforts.

Arbuckle now has a clearance upon his manhood which restores him to his former high standing in the eyes of the public that he held before this dastardly attempt at a "shake down" was instituted.

ROUSTING 'EM OUT

The democratic senators and representatives who are crying out against the action of President Harding in cleaning house at the bureau of engraving and printing are the very ones who were loudest in their demands for political plums when the government was taken over by the Wilson administration in 1913. They had no regard for federal efficiency when they sought to put their political friends in important positions, and they have no regard for it now when they want Mr. Harding to keep men in office who have been proven inefficient after a searching investigation. The democrats may cry "spoils" if it suits them to do so, but the fact is that the federal service is going to be put on a higher plane in efficiency, regardless of how many democratic toes are stepped on in the process.

Why continue to refer to them as murderers? The art has been reduced to such a science they are entitled to a more aristocratic designation.

A NATION'S THANKS

The vote in the United States senate on the Pacific treaty gave peaceable and intelligent Americans a greater cause for thankfulness than they have had since November 11, 1918. Then they saw an unquiet and disordered peace end a war; now they find an ordered peace preventing a war.

The senators who made this achievement of the American government possible by their votes in ratifying the treaty deserve much at this moment from the people of the country.

The supreme credit goes to President Harding. He made the achievement possible. His judgment did not fail at any time either in organizing the conference or during its negotiations. The decision probably rested entirely with him when he made the appointments to the American delegation. From the senate itself he took the republican leader, Mr. Lodge, and the democratic leader, Mr. Underwood. He took Mr. Root and he took Mr. Hughes, the secretary of state, and during the negotiation of the agreement he stepped aside. He permitted the secretary of state to function.

Thus it was possible to present the senate with treaties which did not bear only the impress of one strong-willed and stubborn man. The fact that Mr. Harding several times revealed himself in doubt as to interpretations indicated that he had kept his hands off. He proved the value of the politician in democratic statesmanship. Mr. Harding knew American methods and how to proceed by them. If Mr. Wilson had cared to recognize them the covenant of the League of Nations might have been different, but it might have been accepted by the senate. We think that no covenant for such a league could have done anything but injury to the United States, and are glad now that Mr. Wilson went about his project in the wrong way, just as we are glad that Mr. Harding went to his in the right way.

America and Japan have avoided a senseless war and the United States in finding the way to peace gained distinction. It acquired leadership. It has given the entire world a new precept, and it has found for itself and probably has given the world peace for a long time.

Consider the treaties how they bloomed—were spoiled not, neither did they sin. Republicans in all their glory were not dismayed by one of these:

Yap treaty 67 to 22.
Four-Power treaty 67 to 27.
Supplemental Four-Power treaty 73 to 0.

Naval limitation treaty 74 to 1.
Submarine and noxious gas treaty 71 to 0.

Far Eastern treaty 66 to 0.
Chinese tariff treaty 58 to 1.

And compare the placidity of our chief executive while these treaties were under debate with the storming of the preceding chief executive when the Versailles treaty and its Siamese twin, the league covenant, were under fire. President Harding made not the slightest attempt to coerce the senate. President Wilson campaigned the country and maligned the senators who refused to fall into line. And, again, compare the judgment of the senate in both instances. In the league controversy it refused to humble the United States to the dictates of a super-government. In the case of the Four-Power treaty and its family they saw the advisability of making this nation a party to a compact which would lessen the possibilities of war without abating one jot or tittle of our independent action.

And, finally, consider the inconsistent attitude of the democrats with regard to the Four-Power treaty. This treaty was the crystallization of the Washington conference on the limitation of armaments, a conference at which the democrats sneered and which they attempted to belittle. But when the treaty expression of that conference had been ratified, they tried to show that they were the originators of the armament limitation idea and in the campaign they plan to strut in the borrowed plumage of republican achievement.

Philadelphia North American—European nations are perfectly willing to have Uncle Sam join their little financial game, if he'll put and they take.

THE SAGE OF THE SENATE

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge characterizes as "important if true" the rumored stories of opposition that is developing in Massachusetts against his reelection this fall. It is indeed important, not only to Massachusetts, but to the whole nation, if there is a real danger threatening Mr. Lodge's return to the senate. As chairman of the foreign relations committee, Senator Lodge was the leader of the republican forces in the senate who successfully defended the nation against those who sought to fix the league of nations covenant upon the country, and he rendered scarcely less effective service as one of the four American delegates to the Washington armaments conference. Massachusetts owes it to all her sister states to keep Mr. Lodge in the senate, that they may continue to reap the benefit of his years of experience and profound knowledge of affairs of government.

RETIREMENT AT THREE SCORE

Secretary of the Navy Denby advocates the retirement of naval officers at the age of 30 instead of 64 as at present, and he has drafted a bill for introduction in congress that will amend the law to that effect. It is a wise change. If the personnel of the navy is to be cut down, it is better to cut off the older officers than to deny commissions to the younger graduates of the naval academy.

CALIFORNIA BARS CATTLE OF NEVADA

Pending further investigation of the cattle scrub situation in Western Nevada, Dr. J. P. Iverson, head of the division of animal industries for the California department of agriculture, has announced that he has served notice on the Southern Pacific railroad not to accept for shipment into California any cattle from five counties in Nevada without first obtaining a special permit from his department. The five counties included in the temporary embargo are Washoe, Ormsby, Storey, Lyon and Douglas.

According to Dr. Records, Nevada quarantine officer, the situation in Douglas county has been all cleared up and there is little or no scrub in the state now. The cattle which had the scabies were shipped into Douglas county last fall.

FOR THE TEENS

It is not difficult to save the problem of dress for little girls in these days of specializing. Resourceful designers devote their time to putting materials into styles that are appropriate for the little miss and pleasing to her as well. They craftily take their cues from the "grown-up" modes, modifying them to suit the younger generation, as in the case of the pretty wrap shown here.

This wrap for girls in their "teens" is a cape to which sleeves have been gracefully added. It is made of light weight velveteen and has a full ripple back with a decoration of stitching in two rows around it. It has a large collar which is ingeniously arranged to draw up around the neck by means of a heavy silk cord that is threaded through large eyelets worked in silk like that of the stitching. The cord and eyelets are very decorative.
